Reader 2.0 out of 5 stars I'd rate it capacity at 3 sheets at time. It also cuts the holes it does cut much closer to the edge of the paper than my older GBC binding machine, which does a better job all around. However, it is compact and will do barely, I considered returning it for the second location I wanted to have a binding machine. I kept switching between 2 and 3 stars, because its not really OK, but I decided to keep it because the person who runs the second location was so excited to have their own binding machine rather than having to have everything shipped to be bound I couldn't get myself to take it away from them. This is a very good product. <http://lesliechan.com.sg/cmsEditorFiles/car-book-manuals.xml>

Seemed to be well made but the paper was difficult to insert in the punching slot and tended to crease the top sheets. Only worked well in my opinion when punching less than 5 sheets at a time. Not acceptable for my purposes. I returned it in favor of the larger C20 unit. Would probably work for home type occasional users binding smaller documents of 29 sheets or less. I would not recommend this unit for any type of volume or larger documents due to the inability to accurately punch more than 5 sheets at a time. It does, however, have one major flaw that I imagine a lot of people will have trouble with. The slot to insert paper for punching is quite poorly designed and if your paper is not absolutely flat curled a little at the edges it will catch on the edges of the puncher and not insert fully underneath it. It'll also crease the top pages. It's a pain when this happens, because it won't punch evenly or will only punch the very edges making your paper useless. What I've done to work around this is to lay a length of tape down on the front of the machine that will correspond to the edge of the paper when it's inserted properly. That way I can tell if it's fully inserted and will punch fully. If I can't get the paper to correspond with that line because a sheet has caught on somewhere I slide a bookmark should be relatively stiff across the top sheet while pushing it in. This presses down the paper so it can slide under the puncher. It works like a charm, and is very easy to do. Using the bookmark trick also helps me insert 1215 pages at a go. There's no guide for punching A5 paper, but I've found that using the USA oversized setting and aligning my paper completely to the left works quite well. The handle on the side for punching leaves room for upgrade, seems cheap and I'm afraid to put more than 4 sheets of paper in afraid it will break. Unfortunately, it is too late to return the item. The paper kept jamming. I tried one paper at a time and it still didn't work.

Made less than 5 booklets and the machine's handle doesn't work. Very disappointed with product! Could only punch about 3 sheets at a time had to press extremely hard to punch successfully. Edges have to be very careful or they won't line up properly. On my second and last binding project with this unit, I had to bind a report of 12 pages. A dozen times or more, my original was destroyed and I had to photocopy it and punch it again. I am now shopping around for a more reliable unit. The GBC CombBind C12 unit is destined for the scrap heap. Sorry, we failed to record your vote. Please try again. Sorry, we failed to record your vote. Please try again.
